DETAILED ACTION

1. This supplemental notice of allowance is responsive formal drawings submitted 17 February 2006 and amends the specification to include reference to Figures 14e and 23. Claims 1-40 have been presented for examination based on applicant's amendment filed 4 November 2005. Applicants have now cancelled claims 5 and 18-40. Claims 1-4, and 6-17 were previously allowed over the prior art of record.

EXAMINER'S AMENDMENT

2. An examiner's amendment to the record appears below. Should the changes and/or additions be unacceptable to applicant, an amendment may be filed as provided by 37 CFR 1.312. To ensure consideration of such an amendment, it MUST be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee.

The application has been amended as follows:

In the specification:

On page 6, line 18 delete the words "Figure 14d is." and insert the words "Figures 14d&e are". Also add the letter "s" the word "shot". Line 10 of page 24 should now read:

"Figures 14d&e are exemplary screen shots..."

On page 24, line 10 after the words "illustrated in" delete the words "Fig. 14d." and insert the words "Figures 14d&e". Line 10 of page 24 should now read:

"as illustrated in Figures 14d&e."

Response to Arguments

3 Regarding applicants response to 35 USC 101 and 103(a) rejection: The previous 35 USC 101 and 103(a) rejections have now been rendered moot in view of applicant's cancellation of 5 and 18-40. Claims 1-4 and 6-17 remain pending in this case and were previously allowed over the prior art. Accordingly, the case is now in condition for allowance pending submission of formal drawings.

Drawings

4. Applicant's drawings submitted on 1 November 2002 are informal and were therefore acceptable for examination purposes only. New formal drawings are now required since the case has been placed in condition for allowance.

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claims 1-4, and 6-17 are allowed over the prior art of record.

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

Applicants are disclosing a software development environment where a user can simultaneously view a graphical representation and a text representation of source code including views that are synchronized such that modifications to one view are automatically reflected in the other view, including the ability to detect the particular language of the source code by applying rules. This has been disclosed in the prior art of record.

While these elements are individually disclosed in the prior art, the prior art of record does not meet the conditions as suggested in MPEP section 2132, namely:

“The identical invention must be shown in as complete detail as is contained in the ... claim.” Richardson v. Suzuki Motor Co., 868 F.2d 1226, 1236, 9 USPQ2d 1913, 1920 (Fed. Cir. 1989). The elements must be arranged as required by the claim, but this is not an ipsissimis verbis test, i.e., identity of terminology is not required. In re Bond, 910 F.2d 831, 15 USPQ2d 1566 (Fed. Cir. 1990).”

In particular, the prior art of record does not disclose the specific elements including a document manager (Fig. 2-60) retrieving source code of a data manipulation language type, an editor with means for user editing of retrieved code (Figs. 3-15), a parser layer (Fig. 2-140) detecting data manipulation language type and activating applicable rules, and a dynamically linked visualizer (Figs. 17-21), all cooperating to detect one of a plurality of data manipulation language types and automatically reflect a graphical representation of the source code flows using rules and applicable logic as now recited in independent claim 1. (See: Figure 2, specification page 11, line 2 to page 17, line 17 for example) Data Manipulation Language (DML) is used to retrieve, insert and modify database information in a relational database, such as the INSERT command in SQL.

The prior art of record discloses elements of the claimed invention as follows:

U.S. Patent 6,851,107 issued to Coad et al: teaches a software development tool where a developer (user) can simultaneously view a graphical representation and a text representation of source code which are synchronized (i.e. dynamically linked) such that modifications to one view are automatically reflected in the other view (i.e. edits to the graphical flow are automatically reflected in the source code (text) view and visa versa). Coad further discloses the ability to detect the particular language of the source code and applying rules. However, Coad does not explicitly disclose the specific arrangement of elements including a document manager, editor, parser layer, or visulizer as noted above, or that the detected language is a data manipulation language.

US Patent Application 2003/0056192 A1 issued to Burgess: teaches a system and method for analysis of source code in a relational database (SQL) where a developer (user) can view a graphical representation of code flow inclusive of a visualizer and parser but does not explicitly disclose the specific arrangement of elements including a document manager, editor with means for user editing of retrieved code (See: specification Figs. 3-15) synchronized such that modifications to one view are automatically reflected in the other view as previously cited above.

"An Analysis of Geometric Modeling in Database Systems", Kemper et al: teaches software program analysis inclusive of data manipulation languages but again does not explicitly disclose the specific arrangement of elements including a document manager, editor, parser layer, or visulizer as previously cited above.

The features noted above relating to the specific arrangement of integrated development system elements, as now recited in independent claim 1 renders the claimed invention non-obvious over the prior art of record. Dependent claims 3-4, and 6-17 are deemed allowable as being dependent from independent claim 1.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
